

Tents

Here are some questions to ask for determining the style and size of tent needed:

- How many guests are invited?
- Is your event an open house or will people attend the entire party?
- If there will be a meal, will it be plated or buffet?
- What activities will take place under the tent? Will space be needed for food, guest seating, dance floor, band, bars, dessert tables, etc.
- What type of surface will the tent be placed on? ie: Grass, Concrete, etc.
- What style of tent is best for the event?
 - Pole tents are tensions tents; therefore they require staking on all four sides. Make sure you have appropriate ground for staking. They also require center poles. Our Century/pole tents have beautiful, tall peaks that create a WOW factor!
 - Frame tents may be placed on any surface, and are stand-alone tents. Due to the possibility of wind, these tents must be installed with stakes or weighted for safety. They are great on patios and decks.
- Remember when measuring for tents you need to consider that the tie down straps extend 5ft. out from each side. That means you will need a 30 x 40 space to accommodate a 20x30 tent.

This sample tent layout shows that 60 people can be seated in a 20x30 tent, without allowing for food, bars, etc.
